

May 5, 2017

THE NEW YORKER

GOINGS ON ABOUT TOWN

Art

This weekend, the people are flocking to Randall's Island, where the Frieze Art Fair has pitched a tent—a two-hundred-ring circus with as many galleries hawking art works through Sunday. If you're not in the mood for the madding crowd—or the $46 ticket, which may have sold out by now—pay your respects to Hart Island, also in New York City, one of the subjects in Rochelle Feinstein's exhibition at On Stellar Rays, on the Lower East Side, an homage to the city's forgotten. —Andrea K. Scott